The Czar, Nicholas II, and Princess Alix Are Married.

INCIDENTS OF THE CEREMONY

Crowds Line the Streets of St. Petersburg and Lustily Cheer the Emperor and His Bride-The Troop Assigned to Keep order Are Unarmed.

By the United Press.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 26.-At 1.30 o'clock this afternoon the guns from the fortress announced that Czar Nicholas II. and Princess Alix of Hesse-Darmstadt were married. Before 7 o'clock this morning large crowds of people assembled on the Nevasky Prospect in order to secure places along the route of the wedding procession. From the Anitchkoff palace to the winter palace the avenue was lined with troops.

The imperial council, the imperial ministers and the foreign ambassadors and their wives, who were assembled in St. George's hall in the winter palace, did not take part in the procession, but were conducted by Prince Dolgorouki direct to the cathedral. That edifice is only 120 feet deep by sixty feet wide and scarcely furnished accommodation for the royal and princely guests and the other dinitaries present. From its heavily gilded doors to the rich bronze and gold gates of the Ikonostas the interior of the edifice was a marvel of gorgeousness. Immediately in front of the ikonostas, upon a crimson dals, stood the Arch Priest Janyscheff, the chaplain of the late czar, attended by two priests. When the rings were exchanged the arch priest took the two rings, which had previously been placed upon golden plates upon the altar, and placed them upon the respective ring fingers of the bride. After the third exchange of the rings the nuptial benediction was pronounced. This was followed by prayers for the first time for the orthodox and autocratic emperor, Nicholas, and for his orthodox wife, Alexandra Feodorovna, as the Princess Alix will hereafter be known. The ceremony was concluded at 1.30 p. m.

people of this city will dine today at the expense of the czar. All the schools have been closed for three days.

According to current reports, the czar has caused consternation among the officers of his household by leaving the palace unattended and walking through the streets in a military mantle, or walking arm in arm with the first officer who recognizes him. On Saturday he went for a walk with Princess Alix, entered a glove-store in front of the Anitchkoff palace, and made several purchases. On leaving he was recognized by the people and loudly cheered.

TRAGEDY IN CHINATOWN.

Lee Gon Shoots Lee Hung Quong, Inflict-

By the Hanged Press.

Philadel hia, Nov. 26.—A quarrel with a tragic ending between Chinamen took place this afternoon in the grocery store of Lee Hung Quong, at 926 Race street, when the proprietor was shot in the head and mortally wounded by Lee Gon Yeum, the proprietor of a laundry. Quong was about 54 years of age and is one of the most influential residents of Chinatown. "He is known as "Judge," and his countrymen have referred to him for settlement many of the disputes that arose among them. Recently Lee Gon was arrested for writing scandalous letters. Quong /interested himself in the man's behalf and spent considerable money in his defense. The "Judge" was unsuccessful and a violent quarrel took Lee Gon remained in his shop brooding over the quarrel.

This afternoon he started for the "Judge's" store and on his way bought a revolver and a box of cartridges. He found the "Judge" in his grocery store and the quarrel was renewed. Passers by on Race street were startled by four shots and Lee Gon ran out of the store and down the street. He only got a short distance, however, when he was arrested. Of the four shots fired at the "Judge," but one took effect, and that struck him in the head, inflicting a fatal wound. Lee Hung Quong was known to fame as the only Chinaman in Philadelphia having a Chinese wife and two almond-eyed children.

By the United Press. Constantinople, Nov. 26.-The recent edict calling for the seizure at the frontier of foreign newspapers containing accounts of the Armenian massacres prohibits the entry for ever of any American newspaper into Turkey. This action on the part of the Turkish government is supposed to be due to the attitude assumed by the American press on the Armenian question. Washington, Nov. 26.-The edict permanently excluding all American newspapers from Turkey, has not yet been officially communicated to the Turkish legation here. Secretary Norighian Effendi, who is in charge of the legation during the absence of Minister Mavroyeni Bey, expressed surprise today that the edict should have such a scope as to be a permanent exclusion of American newspapers, and thinks the report may prove overdrawn in this respect There is a press censorship in Turkey, he says, and a press bureau is maintained by the government for the purpose of reading all papers and seeing that the press laws are observed.

Superintendent Brooks of the foreign mail service says that the agreement signed by all nations in the Postal union provides that any nation can exclude any mail which the government deems detrimental to its interests.

At the state department no question s raised as to the authority of the Turkish government to take the action indicated. Nearly every European power has asserted and exercised such authority in the past.

A Trained Animal Attacks His Keeper in a Museum.

Wallicker Suddenly Springs Upon His Nubian Keeper, Who Is Rescued After, a Hard Struggle by the Attendants Who Flock About the Cage.

By the United Press.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Nov. 26.-Harring on's museum was the scene of a very exciting occurrence tonight. Among the attractions this week is a trained lion, named Wallicker, in charge of a Nublan, Veno. The latter enters the lion's cage at every performance. About 10 o'clock this evening when the Nublan went into the cage the lion suddenly sprang upon him. Before he could escape the enraged beast struck him down with his paw and jumped upon him, fastening his teeth in the man's arm. He yelled with pain and fright.

The large audience became panic stricken. Men, women and children made a mad rush for the door, fearing that the lion would break out and attack them. Meantime the attendants, arming themselves with whatever came to hand, surrounded the cage and endeavored to beat the lion away from his victim. The taste of blood had wrought him up to a state of fury and it was some time before they succeeded in driving him into a corner. When Veno was liberated he presented a bloody sight. His right arm was badly lacerated, his hand bitten clear through, and his clothing almost torn from his body. He will recover, however, although the wounds are very painful.

This lion is one of the fiercest in captivity. He killed three men, it is said, during the last season, while in the Southern states.

At a hearing before Alderman Horan, of the North End, yesterday Andrew Smith and Joseph Keturisky were committed to the county jail to await the result of the beating which they had inflicted upon Charles Black in a Penn avenue saloon Sunday. Black is in the Lackawanna hospital, where his condition is not considered alarming. *

Evidence given at the hearing showed that Smith, with the assistance of Keturisky, had beaten Black because he was a prominent witness against Smith three months ago when the latter was acquitted of the charge of being an accessory to the murder of Tomalinus in Park Place. It was proven that Smith said he was sorry that Black had accessory to the murder of Tomlinus and that it had cost him (Smith) $500 to get out of the scrape.

In the North End Smith is considered an all 'round tough and bully who should now be in confinement. His name has often been associated with crime, but his recent offence is palpably plain, and it is likely that he will be
